

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus for improved data management are described. In one embodiment, the method comprises generating a first key component, generating an encryption key using the first key component, a 5 token key and a personal identification number (PIN), encrypting data using the encryption key, and sending the data encrypted with the encryption key to a server along with the first key component.